To whom it may concern,

In the past four years of knowing Mason Reep I have had the pleasure of watching him mature into the dedicated, ambitious person he is. During this time I've had multiple opportunities to witness his efficient development of new learning within a wide range of software applications where his willingness and ability to research and learn new topics has been the catalyst for success. On any given day I can walk over to his desk area and find him working on some new project, many of which are above and beyond the standard IT curriculum.

Along with Mr. Reep's ambition and crave for new learning, this young man's artistic and graphics based skills are quite impressive. The work he produces is consistently used as examples to demonstrate an extraordinary level of quality to others. Mr. Reep also has a natural aptitude to gain knowledge from many different and non-related fields which gives Mason one of the most eclectic backgrounds I've seen for a person his age. I am confident that any path Mason chooses will be fulfilled, successful, and rewarding for those involved.

Yours faithfully,
